THE LATEST WAR NEWS

Tokio, July 5.—A force of Russians attacked the Japanese outposts at Motien Ling Pass Sunday but were repelled, losing 80 killed and wounded. The Japanese casualties were 45.

POSITION OF JAPANESE ARMY.

London, July 5.—The Tokio correspondent of Central News reports that the central column of Japanese first army occupies a line nearly forty miles long between Motien Ling Pass and Hsinkuai Pass. A portion of the northwestern column of the Japanese army occupied Sino Pein Ling, six miles northwest of Fen Shui Ling. The main army of the Japanese has advanced westward.

TYPHUS FEVER APPEARS.

Rome, July 5.—The Liao Yang correspondent of the Agenzia Libera reports that six hundred cases of typhus fever have broken out in the Russian army.

TROOPS MOBILIZED.

St. Petersburg, July 5.—An imperial ukase was issued mobilizing all the troops in the St. Petersburg province.

JAPS CHANGE PLANS.

St. Petersburg, July 5.—The news of moment is that the Japanese, after seemingly abandoning the idea of rushing toward Liao Yang by the northern road, had once started, considerably reinforcing their right flank, with the evident intention of preventing Kuropatkin sending too great an army toward Hail Cheng, which place, it is imagined here, the Japanese will make frantic efforts to take before the rainy season sets in for good and all.

Kuroki's advance guard, forming a considerable force, has gone beyond Mo Tien Pass past Lan Tse Shan, about 15 miles from Liao Yang, but here it is supposed they do not dare capture the latter place.

An imperial order, just issued, causes rather considerable agitation here. It is for a further calling out of the reserves of St. Petersburg.

SEVIERVILLE TRAGEDY.

Knoxville, Tenn., July 5.—Town Marshal S. F. Rogers of Sevierville, shot and killed Cal Lewallen at Sevierville while trying to arrest him. The marshal claims self-defense. The shooting occurred on a public street.

JUDGE PARKER ON FIRST BALLOT

This is Today the Claim of Parker Men.

The Pennsylvania Delegation Is For Parker, Maryland to Follow—Billy Bryan on Hand.

DELEGATES NEARLY ALL IN

St. Louis, July 5.—"Parker in the first ballot." Such, according to Parker men is the interpretation to be placed on the action of the Pennsylvania delegation endorsing Parker's candidacy. Maryland is expected to follow suit, setting at rest all doubts as to Gorman's attitude. All that follows will be merely ratification of the already expressed will of the majority.

A vice presidential boom has been launched in favor of United States Senator Bacon, of Georgia, one of the great constitutional authorities of the senate. His delegation, which is for Parker without a second choice, will support Bacon to the last ditch.

In a final effort to rally the anti-Parker men, William J. Bryan assumed command of the scattered forces and issued a statement, declaring that Parker's nomination is impossible, (1) because he is controlled by Hill and Belmont or other wall street influences, and (2) because he is a weak candidate and could not be elected. The contest between Parker and Roosevelt, he acknowledges, would end in a Democratic rout. Bryan also takes a decided stand against the seating of the Hopkins delegates from Illinois.

All indications point to the successful culmination of the Hill-Belmont plan to make Judge Parker the Democratic nominee for president. The Parker managers are working with untiring industry and no little skill. Delegates are being corralled and branded as fast as they arrive. The opposition is divided and has so far been without able leadership or definite plans.

The Parker men claim the support of Pennsylvania, Maryland, West Virginia and New Jersey, which have formed the basis of the supposed anti-Parker strength in the east. Ohio and Illinois, they declare, will also come in on the second ballot.

William J. Bryan's appearance failed to terrify the Parker men, and it is evident he is no longer the idol of the Democratic party. He called at the Hearst headquarters, but did not appear to take much interest in the Anti-Parker fight.

Charles F. Murphy, the Tammany leader, gave out a statement in which he reiterated his belief that Cleveland was the strongest candidate, adding: "If at this moment I believed that Judge Parker would be as strong before the people of the state of New York as Mr. Cleveland would be, I should be the first to urge his nomination."

Indiana will demand that Taggart be made chairman of the national committee and that the reported deal with Gorman, by which the latter is understood to have been slated for Chairman Jones' place, be repudiated.

Members of the Maryland delegation who have raved offer no explanation of Gorman's absence, but the settlement that he will receive the vote of the state for president, at least for a few ballots, indicates that he still has his lightning rod up.

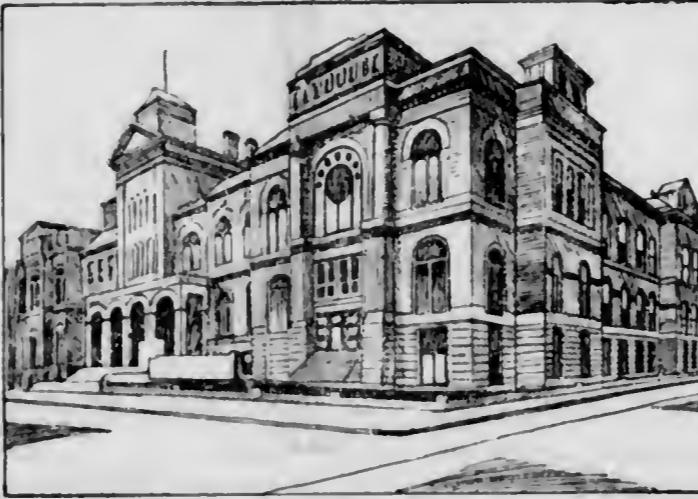

A boom for Senator Carmack for the vice presidency has been started by the Tennessee delegation. At a meeting of the delegation Monday morning at its headquarters at the Jefferson, a committee of five was appointed, headed by James M. Head, the national committeeman of the state, to visit every delegation and work up sentiment and secure pledges for the Tennessee senator for the second place on the ticket.

THE YOUNG MAN ARRESTED

Sharon, Ga., July 5.—At Hillman, where thousands of negroes assemble every Fourth of July, a riot was begun by two negroes named Ed Hillier and Handy Seals. Marshal Stordevant tried to quiet them, when several other negroes interfered, causing a general riot. Guns, pistols, knives and sticks were used freely.

Newton Harris was shot through the stomach and killed outright.

His brother, Ned Harris, was cut across the head and seriously injured. Ed Hillier was shot in the arm but not seriously, and an old colored woman was shot in the face with a shotgun and seriously wounded.

Lucius A. Moore, near whose residence the riot began, interfered in an effort to quiet the mob. He received some small shot from a gun just over the heart, but not serious.

Bob Howell was shot in the back and face and seriously wounded.

Rob Moore was seriously cut on the neck and several others received small wounds that are not serious.

The negroes fled for their lives in every direction soon afterwards, and quiet prevails.

BUILDING BADLY DAMAGED

EVERYTHING NOW TO BEAT PARKER

Combine Formed Today by Anti-Parker Men.

They May Concentrate On Jas-son Harmon—Mr. Bryan Issues a Statement.

THEY SAY PARKER CAN'T WIN

St. Louis, July 5.—The most sensational move of the entire political situation was made today when it was announced by the anti-Parker leaders that a combination against Parker had finally been effected with the strength of Olney, Wall, Cockrell, Harmon and Gray. The former nucleus of the Bryan and Hearst forces was completely annihilated and the voters in the combine are pledged against Parker. The first and second ballots cast does not extend beyond that period.

When Chief Jim Wood and his men arrived from both fire stations, the third and fourth floors were burning furiously, and it was impossible to save any thing of consequence from them. Much of the valuable stock was carried out from the lower floor, however, by volunteers, and police officers remained on duty at the doors to keep out people who had no business inside.

About 12:30 o'clock the fire seemed to be under control, and many of the spectators who had ventured from home in the rain returned. Chief Wood and the firemen remained on the scene and kept pouring water into the building and about 1 o'clock the flames got a fresh start on the fourth floor and burned nearly everything above the second floor before being again subdued.

The firemen did not get through fighting the conflagration until after daylight, although the fire was practically out at 2:30, as it was in a dangerous place and Chief Wood did not propose to take any chances.

The origin of the blaze is unknown, but evidently started in the rear of the upper floors. In the rear of the third floor was a great deal of packing material, and it is possible that one of the numerous sky rockets or candles being sent up all over the city, struck near a window or went through it, and a spark ignited the packing material.

The stock carried by the company is estimated to have been about $35,000 in the building, an auxiliary warehouse being on North Fourth in the old Christian church building, where much of the concern's stock is kept. It is believed that the stock in the store will be almost a total loss, as much of that saved was water soaked.

The building is owned by Captain J. M. White, of Nashville, Tenn., and is damaged probably to the extent of $10,000. It was rebuilt about four or five years ago after the fire that burned out the Kentucky Glass and Queensware company, and was modern in every particular. Insurance was carried on both building and stock.

The stock is believed by the Messrs.
Scott to be a total loss, both the loss on the stock and the building being fully covered by insurance.

They will await the arrival of the insurance adjustors before preparing to resume business. They have a large stock in their Fourth street warehouse, and will probably occupy temporary quarters until the building is repaired, being ready to resume business when the adjustors get through.

The generally accepted theory is that Fourth of July fireworks were responsible for the fire. Many rockets fell on roofs of other business houses, doing no damage on account of the tin. One building was struck and the blazing rocket is said to have dropped through the skylight, but was put out before any damage resulted.

The members of the Scott Hardware company are Messrs. Frank, Will and Dick Scott.

NEW SECRETARY

CLAUDE SNYDER, OF MEMPHIS, SUCCESSES COL. NELSON.

Louisville, Ky., July 5.—Claude F.
Snyder, of Memphis, was this morning elected secretary of the Kentucky and Tennessee board of underwriters to succeed the late Colonel W. C. Nelson. Mr. Snyder is at present special agent of the Manchester company in Kentucky, Tennessee and Arkansas.

Dick Scott.

Little if any damage was done to the buildings on either side, the American Express company on one side and Chamber Brothers on the other.

Chief Wood and his men again for last night's work received many compliments for the way they handled the fire. This is the second fire in the heart of the city within a week that they have confined to one building, although both fires were as ugly and dangerous as any ever seen here.
They might have caused a loss of property ten times as great had they not been subdued as they were and kept confined in the building in which they started.

It was stated by one of the fire and police commissioners today that it would be fully a month, in his opinion, until the new equipment for the additional stations arrives from the factory. It is already overdue, and the city is badly in need of it.

JUNE WEATHER

Official Summary Shows Little Difference.

The Weather This Year Is About the Same as Last.

A great many people seem to think that the weather this year is remarkable. "Did you ever see such weather?" is frequently heard on the streets.

It appears from the official record, however, that the weather for June of this year was about the same as for June last year. Instead of it being cooler than last June a year ago, however, the mean temperature for June 1903, was lower than for the June just closed.

The official figures are thus given by Government Observer William Horan:

ANNOUNCEMENTS.
For Congress.
Hon. J. C. Speight, of Graves
County.

DAILY THOUGHT.
In all life growth is attained through exertion, effort, struggle.
Autagonism, at which many chafe, really provides golden opportunities for development.—Selected.

THE WEATHER.
Occasional showers tonight and Wednesday.

The people of South Second street need not be alarmed over the mayor's suggestion to move the market house and convert the site into a public park. The idea is too ridiculous to merit serious consideration. Even if the property wouldn't revert to the original owners if abandoned as a market house, which it would do under the deeds of conveyance, the idea of buying a park there would be naïve. Before city officials go to agitating the park question they had better turn their attention to the mayor's namesake, "Yeller Park," which is really the best place in the city for a park, being amply large, and centrally located. A small amount of money would put it in good shape, and the fact that the city has let the park go to rack and ruin, and even attempted to repudiate the contract with the county to maintain Yeller park for a long term of years, shows that the administration is not losing any sleep over the park question.

It is now up to the council what to do with the milk and meat inspectors ordinance. Paducah has a population of 25,000 or more, and if the position is abolished it will leave these 25,000 people at the mercy of those sellers of meat and milk who are unscrupulous in their methods. It is likely there are few of these latter, but it is against the evil-disposed that all protective regulations are directed.
It is hardly possible that the public, for the sake of saving a few dollars a month, will approve of the abolishment of an office that is or can be made, of so much benefit to the people. So rarely a city in the country the size of Paducah is without a milk and meat inspector, and to dispense with the one here will be a step backward.

Business may be dull in some circles at present, but there will be a grand revival that will make up for the lull the latter part of the year, after Roosevelt and Fairbanks have been elected and the commercial interests of the country are thus assured that the vast resources of the nation are still in safe hands. Millions of dollars are now ready to be invested and put into circulation as soon as the national administration for the next four years is definitely and satisfactorily settled, and this can only be by electing a Republican ticket.

The Populists are in session up at Springfield, Ill., and will turn out a platform which the Democrats can steal as they did in 1896 and 1900 if they want to. The probabilities are that they will get up an original one this time, however, and leave Mr.
Bryan and Mr. Hearst and their supporters to go to the Pops, or the Pops to come to them through sympathy—it is not certain which.

The death of Colonel R. Lee Suter, at Louisville, from a stray bullet from a bare-brained youth's pistol, removes a picturesque figure from state Democratic politics. Colonel Suter had many friends throughout Kentucky, and was one of these genial, generous men who was as courteous to his political opponents as to his friends.

Santos Domínguez didn't make his balloon ascension at the world's fair yesterday, but Colonel W. J. Bryan was on hand to speak, and it is understood went up in the air himself a few times. It really doesn't make much difference, anyhow. One freak does as well as another for a holiday crowd.

The Turks keep up their bloody massacres. Some day an impatient world will swoop down on the Muslims, divide up his country among more worthy people, and the few who escape will be forced to exhibit themselves in the dime museums as relics of a dead race.

The death list is already being made up from the Fourth of July returns. The reckless carouser with the "unloaded" pistol, as usual, did not fail to get in his fatal work, and in the course of a few days the effects of the toy pistol will probably be noticed.

The Parker men are keeping up a bold front, whether their claims are well-founded or not. The other fellows are also claiming the earth, but they are not attracting as much attention, because Parker seems to have nearly all the Democratic newspapers going his way.

The attendance at the world's fair is increasing and nearly four million have paid to go in since it was opened. It is a big show and the people of this great nation should all see it.

Judging from late reports, the rainy season in Manchuria has not yet stopped the Japanese successes. They are probably web-footed, and paddle around like ducks.

Paducah's Fourth of July celebration was one of the quietest in the city's history.

Suicide of Mrs. Mollie Coates
This Morning.

Left a Note Saying She Was Not Crazy and Jumped Into River at Foot of Old Street.

SHE CAME FROM ANNA, ILL.

The suicide early this morning of Mrs. Mollie Coats, of 711 Jones street, and the pathetic note she left her husband and children, reveal a case of unusual desolation and sadness.
She claims that she was an obstacle in the way of her children, and had been unhappy ever since her mother died nearly a year ago at Anna, Ill. She took her life by jumping from some barges into the river at the foot of Ohio street about 5 o'clock this morning.

Tom Reed, the furniture factory watchman, and the watchmen of several hotels in the vicinity of the N.
C. & St. L. wharf at the foot of Ohio street, were startled early this morning by seeing a woman jump off several barges into the river.

An effort was made by them to rescue her, but she came to the surface only twice and then sank to rise no more. The water was not very deep, and within twenty minutes after her head sunk from view the body was recovered by Fred Johnson, river watchman for the Paducah Furniture Company.

The woman proved to be wife of J.
R. Coats, 29 years old, and the mother of three small children. Life was extinct and her family was at once notified. It was then probably not 5 o'clock, and the body remained near where it was taken ashore until Coroner Neal arrived.

The woman after leaving home near Seventh and Jones street, first walked down the N. C. & St. L. track, through the iron furnace yard, and then crossed towards the right to some barges moored against the bank. She stopped on the barges and began to scrape the mud from her shoes, and then, apparently having done this to her satisfaction, she walked to the edge of the barges and deliberately jumped overboard. Those who chanced to see her had no idea of her intention until they saw her calmly throw herself into the water.

The following note was found where she evidently had just finished writing it before leaving home for the river:

Paducah, Ky., July 5. 4 o'clock in the morning.

I, Mollie Coats, write this so there will be no dispute of my death. It will be my own self that does this—takes my life. I am very unhappy and have been since the 13th of last July, 1903, my mother died in the town of Anna very suddenly. I was left all alone and finding I could not feed and clothe my three little babies, Frances, Blossom and Helen, by myself, brought them and came to their father for help, but as he is disable to support them and my constitution is worn out, I can do no more, and I now make my last request. Give them to the good sisters. Don't ever part the three if it is in God's^s power to keep them together. I am not insane. Please don't say I was.
Only I am obstacle in my children's way. They will be better off with the sisters than with me. If anyone doubts this being my handwriting show it to Mr. Cyrus Harrell and wife, of Paducah. And there are others that will testify to it. My home and birthplace is Anna, Ill., my age 29, and birthday the 3rd of February. I am a widow divorced, but my husband, J. R. Coats, is the father of my children. Frances was 9 the 18th of June, Blossom was 7 the 24th of November and Helen was 6 the 24th of January. I bid my friends and babies adieu.

MOLLIE COATS.

The writing is quite legible, but the punctuation, spelling and grammar are bad.

Her husband did not know that she had left the house until notified of her death. She seems to have arisen

PADUCAH'S FAIR IS NOW A SURE GO

Judge Given Writes That He Has Arranged for it.

Will Begin at the Fair Grounds
August 15th and Will Last One Week.

RACES IN THE AFTERNOON

All doubt as to whether or not Paducah will have a fair this fall is dispelled by Judge C. C. Givens, of Madisonville, one of the promoters recently here, who writes as follows:

Madisonville, Ky., July 2, 1904.
Evening Sun, Paducah, Kentucky.

Gentlemen:—Please announce definitely on behalf of the management, that the Paducah Races and Carnival, will be held at West End Fair Grounds week beginning August 15, race in afternoon intermingled with great array of specialties, and grounds lighted at night, and a fine entertainment given. The night show will not be strictly speaking, a carnival, but instead of walking around and being worn out, the people can sit comfortably in the grand stand and see the performance in the track and from platform.

You can assure the people of Paducah, that a "swell" exhibition will be given in all departments. Yours truly,

(Signed.) C. C. GIVENS
One of the principal attractions will be Kemp's Wild West Show

TWO NEGROES

FOUND HANGING IN THE NORTH-ERN PART OF MARSHALL
COUNTY.

Nashville, Tenn., July 5.—The bodies of two negroes named Aldridge and Johnson were found hanging in the woods in the northern section of Marshall county. They are supposed to have been hanged by Whitecaps Saturday night.

Miss Ada Card of Paducah, has returned from Adrian, Ky., where she is spending the 4th.

About 4 o'clock, quietly written her last message, and slipped out of the house to the river, a distance of six or seven blocks.

Her husband states that the deceased came to Paducah from Anna, Ill., several months ago, and had been acting strangely ever since. She was employed in a lunatic asylum until about a year ago, when her mother died and she quit. She had never seemed to be the same since, according to her husband. He thinks her mind was affected by being in the asylum. She frequently said she would kill herself if it were not for her children, but he had no idea she would.

Her husband works for the Paducah Furniture Company, and it said to be a hard working man. He thinks his wife was temporarily insane.

Coroner Neal had the body removed home and will hold an inquest this afternoon. The scene was most pathetic when the body of the dead mother was taken home to the children.

The verdict of the coroner's jury was of suicide by drowning. The body of the woman will probably be taken to Anna for burial.

LIVELY 70

RIGHT FOOD MAKES YOUNG OF THE AGED.

When one is lively and a hard worker at this age there is something interesting to tell and the Pricer lady who has passed this mark explains how her wonderful health is due to the food she eats.

"I am past seventy years of age and up to five years ago suffered terribly with chronic stomach trouble, heart disease, and was generally as weak as you will find sick old women of 60. At that time I began to use Grape-Nuts food and from the very first it began to build me up. Soon I came to a condition of perfect health because I can digest this food and it is full of nourishment. All my heart and stomach troubles are gone. I soon gained between 15 and 20 pounds and have never lost it. I can now do a hard day's work."

"Certainly this is the greatest food I ever struck. It gave me strength and ambition and courage and try to do all the good I can telling people what it has done for me. Many of my neighbors use it and are doing fine."

"I had the grip the latter part of the winter and for four weeks ate absolutely nothing but Grape-Nuts and came out of the sickness nicely. That will show you how strong and sturdy I am. Truly it is wonderful food to do such things for one of my age." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Judge Hoke's Court

Justice at Sandy Bend Doesn't Always Go, as Was Proved in Two Cases.

WHEN this yere court was lected as justice of the peace in und for the country of Sandy Bend," began Judge Hoke as he rapped for order, "it was understood that what he said had to go. This court took off its coat and began business. It indicted out Justice to white men, Indians and Chinamen alike, and without stint. It enforced the law and compelled respect, and it patted good men on the back and made bad men git up'n hump.

"On several different occasions attin shyster lawyers have had the gall to inform this court that she wasn't the biggest thing in Wyoming and that she would receive a check in her mud career. The court was not skeered. She went right ahead indicin' out Justice and makin' decisions, and she had come to believe that she was all the law fur 500 miles in every direction when she got a throwdown.

ALONG COMES JIM.

"Feller critters, I have been heard to observe in this courtroom that sooner or later crawl on any of my legal decisions. I would resign my office and take to the hills, but the time has come when I've got to take a bluff two of them. Two of my cases have bin reversed on me, and the supreme court has satisfied me that I was wrong. I've got to crawl, and I'm goin' to do it gracefully. While it pains me to diskver that I'm not the biggest thing in Wyoming, I'm consoled by the thought that Justice recognizes Sandy Bend as her headquarters and stops yero most of the time.

"The first case to which I refer is that of Joe Toole agin Jim Harper. Joe has a claim and a camp on Turkey Hill. One day, when he is out, along comes Jim and cleans out the outfit, even down to the skillet. Joe comes home and finds Jim's trail. He is armed, but does his foolin' that trail and bring him to arith and then plant him in a decent manner? Not any! He sits down and weeps and laments instead, and he appears at the Red Dog saloon and calls me out of a poker game to whine fur Justice. That is Jim Harper camped down not three miles away, rolled up in Joe's blankets and sleepin' like a log, and yero is Joe Toole beggin' of me to let loose the dogs of Justice because he ain't man 'nuff to git his own back. Was it any wonder that I turned to the bar and took a drink of water by mistake? Was it any wonder that I went out of that poker game with an ace full in my hand?

"But I let loose the dogs. Jim Harper was arrested and put on trial. He denied makin'. All he said was that Joe Toole was no man. Of course he wasn't. The court said so, and you all said so, and the court got so worked up over it that he let Jim go and sentenced Joe to seven years in state prison. Mebbe it was stretchin' the law a feete. Mebbe it wasn't accordin' to the mtaots. My decision has been upheld by the higher court, and I've got to tell Joe Toole that he is a free man. I do tell him so, and I add that if he is hangin' around Sandy Bend an hour hence this court will give him a hickin' to be remembered till the rest of his days, if Jim Harper wene yere I'd fine him enough to pay for the drinks all around, but as she is holdin' up stages over in Arizona at the present time, and is thus beyond my jurisdiction, all I kin do is to wish him well.

"The second case is that of Tom Reynolds agin Scott White. We all know 'em, and we know that neither are with the powder to blow 'em up. Tom Reynolds is drunk five days in the week, and works at his claim on Wolf mountain the other two. Scott White won't be drunk all the time if there was whisky 'nuff in Sandy Bend, and he had money 'nuff to buy it. It's a n-toss up between the two, and no call for sympathy.

"Three months ago Tom Reynolds treks into a Chinese laundry and steals eighteen shirts. It may be mentioned at this juncture that the best shirt in the lot belonged to this court, and that when he finally got it back one of the tails and all the buttons was gone. Tom is carryin' off his plunder, and has got as far as Squaw creek, when Scott White steps out and points a stick at him and holds him up and takes the shirts. Tom has two guns on him, and don't snap a cartridge in defense. He stands there and shakes and shivers fur a spell, and then he comes to rout me out and holler fur Justice.

"I tell what they gits Justice? ne says as he rushes into the Red Dog.

"She be," says I, "and how do you want it?"

"By the barl!"

His Means of Travel Somewhat of a Puzzle

THIS late General William H. Payne, who died in Washington some time ago, saw four years' brilliant service in the Confederate army and then returned to his home in Warrenton, Va., at the close of the civil war to take up the practice of law," said Senator Daniel, who was an intimate friend of General Payne. "General Payne made quite a name for himself as a skillful handler of these touchy brethren—Virginia mountaineers—and was quite famous for his easy method of gentling them along and getting what he wanted out of them. On one occasion, however, he struck a tartar in the shape of an old mountaineer, and the result of the tilt between them saddened General Payne to the point of explosion and upset the rest of the courtroom so that it was an hour before the Judge could restore order.

"At that time General Payne was prosecuting attorney and was trying a murder case. The mountaineer in question came down to testify, having been a witness to the shooting, which occurred near his home, about fifteen miles from Warrenton.

"You say you came down from your home this morning?" suggested General Payne when the witness took the stand.

"Yes, sir."

"You rode down on horseback, I suppose?"

"No, sir."

"You drove down?"

"No, sir."

"You walked down, then?"

"No, sir."

"Then you came down on the train?" suggested General Payne, who was growing irritated at the tilt that had followed each became negative from the mountaineer.

"No, sir; I didn't come on no kyers."

"Well, then, sir," exclaimed the irate lawyer. "If you neither rode horseback nor drove nor walked nor came on the cars, would you kindly tell the Judge and jury how you did come?"

"I rid one of Bill Farns' old mules," was the solemn reply, which was drowned by the shouts of laughter from all present but General Payne and the witness.—Washington Times.

Use Shoffner's Sure Cure

The Great Tonic and Blood Purifier—Cures Indigestion, Dyspepsia and Catarrh.

It is a trite and true saying that the "blood is the life." Now where does the blood come from? Everybody knows, or should know, that it comes from the nutritive elements extracted by the stomach from the food we eat. If the digestive organs do not perform their functions by reason of disease germs, there is no nutrition extracted, and the blood might better be thrown in the dump to decay and breed germs in the open air than to remain in the stomach and become a rotten, putrid mass, as it naturally does if there is no digestion. No disease germ can live and find lodgment in a human body that uses the Shoffner's Sure Cure. Price $1.00.

The Blazed Trail

By STEWART
EDWARD
WHITE

Copyright, 1902, by Stewart Edward White

"Hold on," he interrupted. "I claim precedence. You can give no receipt for any land in these townships until after my business is transacted. I have reason to believe that this gentleman and myself are both after the same descriptions."

"What?" shouted Morrison, assuming surprise.

"You will have to wait your turn, Mr. Morrison," said the clerk, virtuous before so many witnesses.

The business man was in a white rage of excitement.

"I insist on my application being filed at once!" he cried, waving his check. "I have the money right here to pay for every acre of it, and if I know the law the first man to pay takes the bank."

He slapped the check down on the rail and hit it a number of times with the flat of his hand. Thorpe turned and faced him with a steady look in blue eyes.

"Mr. Morrison," he said, "you are quite right. The first man who pays gets the land, but I have won the first chance to pay. You will kindly step one side until I finish my business with Mr. Smithers here."

"I suppose you have the amount actually with you," said the clerk quite respectfully, "because if you have not Mr. Morrison's claim will take precedence."

"I would hardly have any business in a land office if I did not know that," replied Thorpe, and began his dictation of the description as calmly as though his inside pocket contained the required amount in bank bills.

Thorpe's hopes had sunk to zero. After all, looking at the matter dispassionately, why should he expect Carpenter to trust him, a stranger, with so large a sum? It had been madness, only the blind confidence of the fighting man led him farther into the struggle.

Thorpe's descriptions were contained in the battered little notebook he had carried with him in the woods. For each piece of land first there came the township described by latitude and east and west range. After this generic description followed another figure representing the section of that particular district. So 40-17 W-8 meant section 8 of the township on range 40 north, 17 west. If Thorpe wished to purchase the whole section that description would suffice. On the other hand, if he wished to buy only one forty he described its position in the quarter section. Thus SW NW 40-17-8 meant the southwest forty of the northwest quarter of section 8 in the township already described.

The clerk marked across each square of his map as Thorpe read them the date and the purchaser's name.

In his notebook Thorpe had of course entered the briefest description possible. Now, indicating to the clerk, he conceived the idea of specifying each subdivision. This gained some time. Instead of saying simply, "Northwest corner of section 8," he made of it four separate descriptions, as follows: Northwest quarter of northwest quarter, northeast of northwest quarter, southwest of northwest quarter, and southeast of northwest quarter.

He was not so foolish as to read the descriptions in succession, but so scattered them that the clerk, putting down the figures mechanically, had no idea of the amount of unnecessary work he was doing. The minute hands of the clock dragged around. Thorpe drooped down the long column. The clerk scratched industriously, repeating in a half voice each description as it was transcribed.

At length the task was finished. It became necessary to type duplicate lists of the descriptions. While the somnolent youth finished his task Thorpe listened for the messenger boy on the stairs.

A faint slam was heard outside the rickety old building. Hasty steps sounded along the corridor. The land looker merely stopped the drumming of his fingers on the broad arm of the chair. The door flew open, and Wallace Carpenter walked quickly into the private office.

Mr. Morrison was a smart little man with an ingratiating manner and a sultry eye. He greeted Thorpe with marked geniality.

"My opponent of yesterday," he cried jocundly. "Sit down, Mr. Thorpe. Although you did me out of some land I had made every preparation to purchase. I can't but admire your grit and resourcefulness. How did you get here ahead of us?"

"I walked across the upper peninsula and caught a boat," replied Thorpe briefly.

"Indeed, indeed!" replied Mr. Morrison, placing the tips of his fingers together. "Extraordinary! Well, Mr. Thorpe, you overreached us nicely, and I suppose we must pay for our carelessness. We must have that pine cut, though we pay stumpage on it. Now, what would you consider a fair price for it?"

NAPOLEON, As Seen by His Associates

ODD STORIES OF NAPOLEON

[Copyright, 1904, by G. L. Kilmer.]

XXI.

THIE Duchesse d'Abbrantie relates the following anecdote of Napoleon's debut in uniform at the age of sixteen:

"Previously to his departure he came to pass some time at our house. My sister was then at her convent, but she frequently came home while Napoleon was with us. I well recollect that on the day when he first put on his uniform he was as valiant as young men usually are on such an occasion. There was one part of his dress which had a very droll appearance—that was his boots. They were so high and wide that his little thin legs seemed buried in their amplitude. Young people are always ready to observe anything ridiculous, and as soon as my sister and I saw Napoleon enter the drawing room we burst into a loud fit of laughter. At that early age, as well as in after life, Bonaparte could not recall a joke, and when he found himself the object of merriment he grew angry. My sister, who was some years older than I, told him that since he wore a sword he ought to be gallant to ladies and instead of being angry should be happy that they joked with him. 'You are nothing but a child—a little pensionnaire,' said Napoleon in a tone of contempt. 'Cecile, who was twelve or thirteen years of age, was highly indignant at being called a child, and she hastily resented the affront by replying to Bonaparte, 'And you are nothing but a puss in boots.' This excited a general laugh among all present except Napoleon, whose rage I will not attempt to describe."

Napoleon's last appearance on the firing line was described by his aide-de-camp, General Gourgand, to Dr. O'Meara at St. Helena.

"General Gourgand informed me that at the close of the battle of Waterloo," says Dr. O'Meara, "when the charge made by the French had failed and the English charged in their turn, a part of the cavalry of the latter, with some tirailleurs intermingled with them, approached to within a hundred or a hundred and fifty paces of the spot where the emperor was standing with only Soult, Drouot, Bertrand and himself. Close to them was a small French battalion drawn up in a square. Napoleon ordered Gourgand to fire some shots from two or three fieldpieces which belonged to the battalion to drive away the cavalry, which were approaching nearer. This was put into execution, and one of those shots carried away the Marquis of Anglesea's leg. Napoleon then placed himself with the column and wanted to charge, exclaiming, 'Il faut mourir ici, il faut mourir sur le champ de bataille!' (I must die here; I must die on the field of battle!) At this time the English tirailleurs were firing at them, and they expected every moment to be charged. Ladoyere was galloping about like a madman, with his arms extended before him, seeking to be killed. Napoleon was prevented from throwing himself among the enemy by Soult, who held him by the bridle, exclaiming that he would not be killed, but taken prisoner, and, with the aid of the others, finally succeeded in compelling him to leave the field."

"Where did you get it?" asked Thorpe breathlessly.

"A fellow came here early and left it for you while I was sweeping out," explained the boy. "Said he had to catch a train. It's yours, all right, ain't it?"

"It is, yes," replied Thorpe.

"He took the envelope and walked uncertainly to the tall window. He looked out at the chimneys. After a moment he tore open the envelope.

"I hope there's no bad news, sir?" said the clerk, starting at the palleness of the face. Thorpe turned to the desk.

"No," replied the land looker. "Give me a receipt. There's a certified check for your money!"

CHAPTER XIV.

NEXT day the articles of partnership were drawn, and Carpenter gave his note for the necessary expenses. Then, in answer to a penciled card which Mr. Morrison had evidently left at Thorpe's hotel in person, both young men called at the lumberman's place of business. They were ushered immediately into the private office.

Mr. Morrison was a smart little man with an ingratiating manner and a sultry eye. He greeted Thorpe with marked geniality.

"My opponent of yesterday," he cried jocundly. "Sit down, Mr. Thorpe. Although you did me out of some land I had made every preparation to purchase. I can't but admire your grit and resourcefulness. How did you get here ahead of us?"

"I walked across the upper peninsula and caught a boat," replied Thorpe briefly.

"Indeed, indeed!" replied Mr. Morrison, placing the tips of his fingers together. "Extraordinary! Well, Mr. Thorpe, you overreached us nicely, and I suppose we must pay for our carelessness. We must have that pine cut, though we pay stumpage on it. Now, what would you consider a fair price for it?"

"No," replied Thorpe in his turn.

"What can we do?"

"Can you get your check certified here near at hand?"

"Yes."

"Well, go do it. And get a move on
